Defense Dept. To Help Probe A-Test 'Leaks'

Atomic Scientists Feel H-Bomb Here

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Secretary Lovett said today the Defense Department will co-operate in investigating the possibility of security leaks from the atomic tests at Eniwetok, which included successful experiments in hydrogen bomb research.

The Atomic Energy Commission, when it announced completion of the tests last night, disclosed some concern about security.

This stemmed from the series of letters which have come back from the Pacific proving grounds giving eyewitness accounts. One said an H-bomb was tested.

AEC Chairman Gordon Dean said an investigation would be made leading to possible disciplinary action or prosecution for violation of task force regulations or the law.

No Postal Censorship

At a news conference today, Lovett said that as far as he knew no postal censorship was enforced from Eniwetok during the tests.

He understood, he said, that all observers and participants had given assurances that they would make no disclosures and that the crews of all vessels in the force had been briefed on the necessity for safeguarding security.

In announcing the tests, the AEC carefully refrained from saying a hydrogen bomb had been tested. It said it had conducted successfully "experiments contributing to thermonuclear weapons research."

Dr. Harold C. Urey, a scientist and Nobel Prize winner who helped develop the first atomic bomb, said in Chicago the AEC's technical worded statement "sounds like official language for a successful H-bomb."

Believes H-Bomb Exploded

And a private atomic scientist in Washington, studying the statement, said he believes the United States should have practical H-bombs ready for use within a year.

This scientist, who asked to remain anonymous, also expressed the opinion that some kind of an experimental hydrogen bomb was exploded — possibly a bomb contained within a "wrapper" made of an orthodox A-bomb.

Letters from men who saw the gigantic explosion — ship crew members and others attached to the secret task force — have been published widely in the United States. One writer said flatly he had seen the world's first H-bomb detonated.

Tammany Chief Deferred In '44 Although Jobless

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (AP)—The head of Tammany Hall admitted in a gavel-banging crime probe hearing today that he won draft deferment as an essential worker when he didn't even have a job.

That was in 1944 when Carmen De Sapio, 43, head of the powerful Manhattan Democratic organization, was a Tammany district leader. He has been Tammany chieftain since 1949.

De Sapio was asked if he could give any explanation for the draft deferment at the height of World War II when he was 35 years old.

"Not as of the moment, I can't," De Sapio told a state crime commission hearing into politico-racket tieups.

He testified he hadn't held a regular job from 1939 to 1946, then added:

"My parents were in the real estate business and I was part and parcel of the operation."

De Sapio took the stand after witness upon witness had testified in the proceedings last week to the power which Tammany wove over the vast city of New York—a power that counted in the background the active friendship of some of the toughest racketeers of the underworld.

King Directs Papagos To Form Greek Cabinet

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 17 (AP)—King Paul today called on conservative Field Marshal Alexander Papagos—winner by a landslide in Sunday's elections—to form a new Greek government and take office Wednesday.

Papagos, national military hero who promised to clean up corruption and cooperate with American and NATO authorities to strengthen defenses against communism, will have an overwhelming majority in the new Parliament.

Lewis Sees Full Mine Wage Hike Sooner Or Later

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—John L. Lewis declared today that "unrest and confusion" will prevail in the coal fields until the government allows coal miners their full $1.90 daily pay raise.

Sooner or later the miners will get the $1.90, he said.

Lewis failed to make clear whether he meant the 350,000 soft coal miners will again walk out in protest if Economic Stabilizer Roger L. Putnam upholds a ruling by the Wage Stabilization Board. The WSB has decided that only $1.50 of the pay boost is payable under inflation controls.

But Lewis, United Mine Workers president, seemed to indicate the miners will continue working regardless of how Putnam may decide the appeal from the WSB ruling. Lewis said "we'll wait" until the WSB goes out of business and wage controls are abandoned but some day the miners will get the full amount.

Reversal Would Peril Controls

Any reversal of the WSB by Putnam could hasten the end of wage controls because the wage board has said the full miners' pay raise, if paid, would damage "our national effort to halt inflation."

More and more labor unions are demanding that pay controls be dropped. All wage and price controls expire next April 30, unless extended by Congress.

Lewis and Harry M. Moses, president of the Bituminous Coal Producers Association, argued at a special hearing before Putnam that the miners are entitled to the full $1.90 raise in any case. Lewis said the WSB had committed "an atrocious wrong" on the miners.

Both contended that most American workers enjoy paid holidays, more generous vacations and larger premiums for night work than do the miners. They said the miners preferred to get their pay in straight wages rather than in such "fringe" benefits.

Holiday Pay Criticized

Moses stressed that the mine owners felt strongly that labor costs should be expressed in the pay envelope rather than in such side benefits as holiday and vacation pay.

"I think they're bad in all industries," Moses told Putnam. "They are pay for work not performed. When it is paid in wages you get more work for the money — better productivity."

"I believe paid holidays are feather-bedding in any case. It's almost un-American. Mr. Lewis doesn't agree with me on this, but I use the word 'feather-bedding' just to irritate him sometimes."

Navy Prepares To Test Its Hydro-Ski Equipped Fighter

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (AP)—The Navy today announced a new seaplane jet fighter — the Convair XF2Y — and said it is the first known application of the hydro-ski to a combat aircraft.

The hydro-ski is an adaptation of water skis to aircraft without incorporating any floating characteristics into the plane — as in the case of the flying boat — or in the landing gear, as in the case of the float planes.

John F. Floberg, assistant secretary of the Navy for air, told a luncheon meeting the contract to produce the new plane marks the re-entry of the fighter plane into the water-based field.

He said it would not be in the best interests of the country to elaborate on details of design or performance.

The plane, being manufactured by the Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Company, is scheduled for its first flight in the near future, but probably will not become operational for a considerable period.

Floberg said the hydro-ski equipped aircraft are not expected to "replace any type of ship, conventional craft or even seaplane in the Navy. He said hydro-ski equipped aircraft have these advantages:

1. They could be based in forward areas where there is protected water, before land bases could be built.

U. S. May Get More Bases On Greenland

Copenhagen Report Lacks Confirmation

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Nov. 17 (AP)—A Danish government source said today agreement had been reached for the United States to establish at least four more air bases in strategic Greenland, but a U. S. State Department spokesman and Denmark's foreign minister denied knowing anything about it.

Finn Nielsen, acting chief of Denmark's Greenland Department, questioned the report, said an official announcement was expected Tuesday or Wednesday from both Copenhagen and Washington. He later declared this statement would concern only work to be carried out by six Danish contractors at "Blue West One," a U. S. Air Force base already in operation at Narsarsuaq on Greenland's west coast.

He refused to deny the report that at least four, possibly five more bases are to be established, in addition to three already in operation, declaring repeatedly, "I personally know nothing about it."

Asked why six of Denmark's largest engineering and contracting firms had combined to carry out a relatively minor job at Narsarsuaq, Nielsen said "I guess they hope to get something bigger to do in Greenland after they have finished the project, but I know nothing."

In Washington, a State Department spokesman also said he "knows of no basis" for the report of additional Greenland bases which would push the free world's defenses hundreds of miles closer to Russia along the polar air routes.

Danish Foreign Minister Ole Bjorn Kraft, at the United Nations in New York, said he knew of no Danish-American agreement for new air bases in Greenland. He added that he thought the U. S. already had "sufficient" bases on the Arctic island.

Other government sources here said negotiations had been conducted by the Danish ministries for Greenland and defense.

High Court Again Rebuffs A-Spies

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—The Supreme Court today fired a double-barreled "no" at pleas by convicted Atomic Spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg that the high tribunal save them from the electric chair.

By an 8 to 1 vote—Justice Black dissenting—the court refused for the second time in just over a month to review their conviction on charges of stealing A-bomb secrets for Russia.

And Justice Frankfurter, in a statement, declared the high court did not have the power to reduce their death sentence, as the couple had asked. Congress, he said, abolished such power in 1911.

This second turnaround for the New York couple—the first came Oct. 13—came close to slamming Sing Sing Prison's deathhouse door on the couple. The Rosenbergs have been imprisoned there during the 19 months since they were convicted.

Only the President can save the Rosenbergs by reducing their death sentences to prison terms. Today's ruling clears the way for the federal prosecutor in New York to ask the U. S. District Court to set an execution date.

Wonder If They Even Look Alike?

MINEOLA, N. Y., Nov. 17 (AP)—Astonished Nassau Hospital officials today discovered: They have two new babies, both named Thomas Donahue, both born Saturday, and both with mothers named Margaret Donahue.

One distinction: Margaret No. 1's husband is named William, Margaret No. 2's husband is named Thomas.

Eisenhower Resigns As Columbia President

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (AP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower has submitted his resignation as president of Columbia University, effective Jan. 19, the day before his inauguration as president of the United States, the university said today.

Eisenhower assumed the presidency of Columbia on June 7, 1948. Since February, 1951, he has been on leave without pay. He took the leave to serve for 15 months as supreme commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) forces.

The university made public a letter from Eisenhower, dated Nov. 15, submitting his resignation as president and as a trustee.

Ike, Truman Will Meet Today

Buildings Shattered By Tornado
The second story storerooms and basketball court over this group of store buildings are only a battered shell today after a tornado struck the business section of Hopkins, Mo., a community of 800. Mayor S. K. Mendenhall estimated damage at $1,250,000. Only two persons were injured.

Crash Of Fourth C-119 In 11 Days Kills Eight Men

BILLINGS, Mont., Nov. 17 (AP)—An Air Force C-119 Flying Boxcar crashed and burned in a swampy pasture 12 miles east of here today, killing eight men and injuring eight others, one critically.

All aboard the ill-fated ship were military personnel. These included two English soldiers, who reportedly walked away from the scattered and flaming wreckage to nearby U. S. Highway 10 minutes after the fatal crash at 2:30 p. m.

The plane was the fourth C-119 Flying Boxcar to crash in 11 days. Motor Shaken Loose Civil Aeronautics Administration investigators said "propeller trouble" apparently caused one motor of the transport to shake loose. The plane crashed as it tried to circle for an emergency landing at the Billings airport.

The faulty motor dropped from the ship as it crossed over Highway 10 several miles north of the crash scene. The missing engine had not been located late tonight.

Flying At 9,000 Feet

Investigators said they learned the twin-engine plane was flying at 9,000 feet when the engine trouble developed. They reported the Lewistown airport control tower received a distress signal from the pilot of the plane.

The series of crashes involving the Flying Boxcars began when one smashed into an Alaskan peak, killing 19. Another disappeared and presumably crashed with 20 aboard in Alaska Saturday. The same day all 44 aboard died when a C-119 struck a Korean mountain side.

Ike's Vacation Draws To Close

AUGUSTA, Ga., Nov. 17 (AP)—President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower cleaned up his business in a hurry today, whacked a golf ball soundly, then strode down a sun-bathed fairway toward the end of a two-week vacation.

Tomorrow morning the general flies to Washington for a momentous conference there in the afternoon with President Truman. Then he will go on to New York for a round of important meetings starting Wednesday, when he will see Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio and other GOP congressional leaders.

Aides pictured Eisenhower, well rested from the grind of the campaign, as eager to get started on the real business of laying the groundwork for the new Republican administration.

But like any other man with a grueling job ahead, the general was getting the most out of this final day of vacation.

Ike May Seek Sales Tax, Sen. Morse Says

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (INS)—Sen. Morse (Ind.) Ore., said tonight that the Eisenhower administration may seek a national sales tax.

The former Republican, who split with the GOP during the pre-election campaign, said the tax could come either on a retail or a manufacturers level. He said he was not in favor of the tax and declared:

"Tax reduction is meaningless unless you can reform all along the line, but I don't expect this to be done by Republicans."

Mamie Is Forced To Decline Bess' White House Bid

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower has turned down an invitation to visit the White House tomorrow — but she has promised to come down from New York soon to talk housekeeping with Mrs. Harry S. Truman.

The White House disclosed this today, saying the first lady telephoned an invitation to her successor at Augusta, Ga., this morning.

Mrs. Truman learned only yesterday, a spokesman said, that Mrs. Eisenhower was going to accompany her husband on his flight to Washington for a White House conference tomorrow.

Mrs. Eisenhower said she already had made an engagement for the short time she and the President-elect will be here tomorrow, the spokesman said.

Court Holds Dad Has Duty To Help With Housework

LONDON, Nov. 17 (AP)—A three-judge court held today that the father of six children has a duty to help with the housework. Accordingly, the Court of Appeal tossed out a divorce decree won by Cedric W. Bartholomew on the ground that his wife's untidiness drove him from their home. Instead Mrs. Ivy Bartholomew won a decree for desertion.

Lord Justice Sir John Singleton declared:

"The fact that a wife is lazy or dirty does not of necessity show that she is determined to get rid of her husband. She may be lazy or dirty because of lack of energy."

"The husband," added Justice Sir Charlton Hodson, "should have buckled to himself and seen that the house and children were kept in a proper condition."

SEVILLA, Spain, Nov. 17 (AP)—A light military plane crashed at Tablada airfield today, killing three men working on the ground.

McKeldin Suggests Cabinet Posts For Byrd And Byrnes

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 17 (AP)—The Southern Governors Conference, in its first session since the presidential election, today steered clear of national politics, at least on the surface, and worked toward interstate cooperation in higher education.

But in an interview, Maryland's Gov. Theodore McKeldin, lone Republican among the 16 members of the conference, was quoted by the New Orleans States as suggesting the appointment of Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) as secretary of the treasury.

"And it seems likely that Gov. (James F.) Byrnes of South Carolina will be offered either a Cabinet post or some other job in the administration" of President-elect Eisenhower, he told the paper.

The New Orleans item quoted Gov. Johnston Murray of Oklahoma as putting forward the name of Texas Gov. Allan Shivers for a Cabinet post, possibly secretary of the interior.

The President-elect was nominated for the GOP presidential nomination by Gov. McKeldin at the party's Chicago convention, and he said today he saw in Eisenhower's Nov. 4 victory the seed of a two-party system in the South.

U. S. Sabre Jets Down At Least Five Red MIGs

SEOUL, Tuesday, Nov. 18 (AP)—U. S. Sabre jets rampaged high over snowy Northwest Korea Monday, shooting down five and possibly seven Communist MIGs, the Fifth Air Force said.

The air battles produced the nation's 21st Korean War ace. He is a 34-year-old Texan fighting his second war, Col. Royal N. Baker of McKinney, commander of the Fourth Interceptor Group.

The U. S. Fifth Air Force announced that in addition to five MIGs positively downed, a sixth destruction claim was pending, one more MIG probably was destroyed and another damaged.

Ground fighting lagged while Allied and Communist artillery exchanged heavy volleys for hours across the Central Front.

Front dispatches said the Communist artillery and mortars north of the Triangle Hill-Sniper Ridge sector fired at the rate of 1,200 rounds an hour—a near saturation volume.

Toward nightfall, Eighth Army troops spotted a Chinese Communist battalion on the move toward saw-toothed Sniper Ridge, but Allied artillery broke up the movement.

Eisenhower To Be Briefed By President

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Harry Truman and Dwight Eisenhower meet tomorrow to confront together difficult problems that lie ahead and to show the world America is united in the cause of freedom and peace.

President and President-elect were agreed on that much of a goal in advance of an historic conference in the green-paneled oval office at the White House which the one relinquishes and the other takes over on Jan. 20.

There were widespread expectations the two would lay aside the enmities and stinging words of the presidential campaign and join in a formal, reassuring statement that this nation marches united toward the goal of peace.

Few Foreign Policy Differences

For, bitter as was the campaign, it turned up little basic difference on foreign policy between the President and the world-renowned general who once helped him administer important phases of foreign policy.

Whether there could be any meeting of minds and announcements of decisions on domestic issues was far more questionable. Political bigwigs looked for little along these lines as the result of a face to face meeting between Eisenhower and Truman alone and their subsequent conference flanked by key advisers.

Eisenhower aides have said the general expects to make no commitments and assume no responsibilities for any governmental actions in the interval before he takes over his new political command.

They considered the conference more in the nature of a briefing, in the interests of what Truman described as "the orderly transfer of the business of the executive branch of the government to the new administration."

Emphasis On Foreign Problems

It was on problems abroad that Truman laid the emphasis in inviting Eisenhower to the White House. He said the new administration and Congress would face "extremely difficult problems, particularly in the field of foreign affairs"—problems whose proper solution "may determine whether we shall have a third world war."

He was asking the man who will succeed him to come to the White House, Truman said, to discuss these problems and thus make it "plain to the whole world that our people are united in the struggle for freedom and peace." And Eisenhower, in accepting, said he shared this view.

Truman reportedly was prepared to urge his successor to pick within the next fortnight the cabinet officers who will be most concerned with these problems—the secretary of state, defense and treasury.

Dunlap's New Tax Post Is Demotion

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—U. S. Internal Revenue Commissioner John B. Dunlap, who figured recently as a target of Republican congressional fire, was appointed to a new post today as chief of the tax bureau's Texas-Oklahoma district.

John S. Graham, 47, assistant secretary of the Treasury, was named acting commissioner to succeed Dunlap.

In stepping down from the nation's No. 1 tax-collecting post, Dunlap suffers a $1,500-a-year salary cut, but acquires civil service protection against possible dismissal under the incoming Republican administration which takes over on Jan. 20.

Rollback Of Meat Prices Indicated

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Price Stabilizer Tighe Woods today called on his meat price experts to have ready by Monday an order rolling back retail meat prices or let him know the reason why it can't be done.

Woods set his Office of Price Stabilization staff to work last month on a study of beef prices at wholesale and retail, together with the prices slaughterers are paying cattlemen and farmers for their livestock.

"I told them today they have had enough time to consider the matter," Woods told a reporter. "I told them not to leave the matter dangling any longer. I want action by Monday."

Woods held a meeting with the OPS National Consumer Advisory Committee during the afternoon. He told this meeting:

"At every meeting I've had with housewives, the question comes up about meat prices remaining high while prices to livestock raisers are declining. I've told the national office staff to have by next Monday an order on my desk rolling back prices or a full explanation of why it can't be done."

Woods said there may be legal reasons as to why it is impossible. If there is such a reason, he said, he "wants the public to know why we are not taking action."

M'Inerney Didn't Use Profanity, Judge Decides

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—An assistant attorney general's conversation with a taxi driver became a matter of court controversy today during defense attempts to knock out a perjury indictment against Dr. Joseph W. Weinberg.

At question was whether Assistant Attorney General James M. McInerney had used profane language in describing Weinberg. The judge decided not.

Weinberg, linked by the House Un-American Activities Committee to atomic espionage, is accused of lying, when he denied in testimony before the committee, that he had been a Communist.

U. S. District Judge James R. Kirkland began hearings today on a series of defense motions to nullify the perjury indictment.

Joseph A. Fanelli, one of Weinberg's attorneys, filed a sworn statement that quoted a Washington taxicab driver as saying McInerney once told him the government had "enough evidence to hang the S.O.B." The judge said he didn't believe it.

B & O Will Pay First Common Stock Dividend In 21 Years

BALTIMORE, Nov. 17 (AP)—Holders of common stock in the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad are to be paid their first dividend in 21 years.

Directors today declared a dividend of 75 cents to those holding the 2,562,953 shares of common stock on Nov. 28. The B & O last paid a common dividend of $5.25 in 1931.

The directors also announced holders of 588,630 shares of preferred stock will receive the same dividend as last year, $4.

The common dividend will total $1,922,214 and the preferred $2,354,520.

Roy B. White, president, told the stockholders at the 126th annual meeting of the railroad that net income during the first 10 months of this year was $20,645,939, a gain of $5,417,016 over the same period last year.

'Danny Boy' Of 1947 Slaying Of Navy Wife Wins Parole

ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 17 (AP)—Joseph Daniel Brouillette, the "Danny Boy" of the 1947 Tall Timbers murder of a Navy officer's wife, has been paroled after five years in Maryland Penitentiary, the State House announced today.

Brouillette was convicted of second-degree murder and sentenced to 12 years in the fatal beating of Mrs. Julia Katona, 35-year-old mother of twins.

His nude, bruised body was discovered by her husband, Lt. Frank Katona, when he got home from an overnight tour of duty at Patuxent Naval Air Center on July 23, 1947. Brouillette, a Navy seaman from Manchester, N. H., also had been stationed at Patuxent.

The couple lived at Tall Timbers, a community of cottages built under trees towering above Potomac River a few miles from the air station.

Katona found his wife's body on the floor of a cabin near their home. The cabin was deserted except for weekends, when its Washington owner brought friends together for fishing parties.

Brouillette, then 22 and married less than three months, said he remembered hitting Mrs. Katona after they kissed and petted for an hour. He said he flew into a rage when she finally repulsed him, but was unaware he struck her hard enough to cause serious injury.

Cranberry Sauce Off Controls List

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Cranberry sauce was exempted from price control today.

The Office of Price Stabilization said the action wasn't taken just because of the approaching holiday season when cranberries are a favorite with turkey.

OPS said the order was necessary to comply with the controls law. An amendment to this act required OPS to exempt fruits and vegetables in raw and processed form beginning last July 1.

The price agency finally decided canned cranberry sauce fell into that class, whether in whole or jellied form.

Part Of Drought Area Gets Rain

(By The Associated Press)

Welcome rains, ranging up to downpours of five inches and more in Iowa, drenched a wide belt through the midwestern drought area yesterday but missed most of the parched winter wheat belt.

The precipitation extended from Illinois across Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, South Dakota, Colorado and down into New Mexico and Arizona, with a little spilling over into Northern Missouri and parts of Northern Kansas.

There was only a tantalizing mist or a few widely scattered sprinkles over Texas, Oklahoma and most of Kansas, an area that constitutes the major portion of the nation's winter wheat belt.

Forecasters believed most of the precipitation was over, leaving little hope for cracking the worst drought in the Southwest since the dust bowl days of the 1930s.

Only Nebraska, among the winter wheat states, really benefited. Rains totaled more than two and one-half inches in most of the eastern portion of the state, and in the west snow piled up to as much as a foot deep.

It ended a period of almost two months without major precipitation.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 17 (AP)—The Southern Governors' Conference and the Southern Regional Education Board today killed, at least for a year, the proposed establishment of a Southern Regional Education Foundation.

The action came after the governors of Texas, South Carolina, Virginia and Florida had attacked the proposal.

Gas Hike Is Too High

On Thursday of this week, the Public Service Commission of Maryland will begin three days of hearings on a request of the Cumberland and Allegany Gas Company for a rate increase of up to 51 per cent.

A few weeks later, on December 8, the Public Service Commission of West Virginia will conduct hearings on a similar request of the gas company to hike its rates in West Virginia.

Opposition to the increase apparently is virtually unanimous. In West Virginia, some communities are raising a "war chest" to provide funds to combat the increase.

In this county, both the Mayor and Council of Cumberland and the Board of County Commissioners have gone on record as opposing the increase, and both bodies have instructed their attorneys to be present at the hearing to fight the proposed increase, termed by the city as "entirely out of line and in excess."

The Cumberland News, commending other groups for their opposition, likewise takes a stand of being opposed to such an excessive rate increase as the gas company requests.

There can be little question that the gas company, like individuals and other businesses, has been caught up in the ever rising tide of inflation. But we fail to understand how an increase in rates of up to 51 per cent can be justified.

The gas company has pointed out that it has not raised rates for some 20 years, which could lead one to believe that there was no basis on which they could justify a higher rate during that period. But on the other hand, if justification could have been shown, smaller increases could have been sought from time to time.

It does not seem reasonable that a demand for such a high increase could have become necessary overnight. After all, the gas company has expanded its lines considerably and the return from this should have made up, to some degree at least, for increased costs.

The Unsung Hero

Among those prognosticators who are either taking bows or eating crow on the basis of the recent election is an unsung hero which ought to get more attention. This is the Univac, the fabulous mechanical brain which the Columbia Broadcasting System had enlisted to help in getting out the election returns.

For weeks, the brain's masters had been feeding into it the results of the past two Presidential elections. By being able to compare almost instantaneously the results of the past and the present, CBS felt it could get a news beat on possible trends.

As sort of a warmup exercise, the masters gave the Univac the go sign early on election night on the basis of 3,000,000 votes. When the answer came back the scientists shook their heads. Something was haywire, for the machine was predicting 438 electoral votes for Eisenhower and 93 for Stevenson. The masters told the machine in effect it was being a smarty pants and cut out part of its "brain."

And so it transpired that Univac, with one hand tied behind it, was no quicker than a raft of political experts who said by 10:30 p. m. that Eisenhower appeared to be in. So that leaves the question hanging fire: Was Univac's first answer, which was phenomenally close to the actual result, a mechanical error or was the machine outstepping the best brains in the country?

If they find nothing wrong within the miles of wiring and banks of tubes, who's to decide whether the machine was wrong? They should run the whole thing through again and give Univac an uninhibited crack at the problem.

Unquenchable Spirit

Dr. Thomas R. A. Davis of New Zealand, his wife and four children have arrived at Boston from New Zealand. There is nothing extraordinary about arriving at Boston, unless, like the Davises, the arrival is made in a 48-foot ketch after a 117-day voyage across 10,000 miles of ocean wastes and through five fierce Pacific gales.

Dr. Davis, chief medical officer of the Cook Islands, came to attend the Harvard School of Public Health. He came the hard way because he wanted to gather evidence to support a theory that the Polynesians migrated to Peru and gave rise to the Inca civilization.

This is the antithesis of the theory held by the crew of the Kon-Tiki, who drifted westward on a balsam raft in hope of proving that Peruvians settled Polynesia. Their fascinating voyage produced a best-selling book, but all they succeeded in proving was that Peruvians could have done what they did.

One gathers that Dr. Davis is satisfied with his evidence. He thinks he knows the "real reason" for the pronounced similarities between Incan and Polynesian cultures. But Dr. Davis is doing no loose talking to the press.

No one can justly blame him for his reticence. He, too, plans a book. And, like all who undertake the laborious task that is literary creation, he hopes his will be a best-seller. He is entitled to whatever profit is obtainable from his gallant voyage.

The First Challenge

The budget of $85,000,000,000 which President Truman is expected to submit to the new Congress will hand General Eisenhower one of the many challenges he will face when he takes office two months from now. And he will not have much time to make up his mind what he is going to do about it. He has Joseph M. Dodge, his own expert, studying the nation's fiscal status at headquarters in Washington and looking for ways to reduce expenses.

While it should be relatively easy to take a substantial bite out of the President's budget—Mr. Truman has always been extravagant in his estimates—attainment of the $70,000,000,000 goal which the Republicans have set for themselves calls for heroic action.

That is because defense and security expenditures—including foreign aid—already voted by Congress total nearly $59,000,000,000 and interest on the public debt plus veterans' benefits are in the neighborhood of $15,000,000,000 a year. In addition it costs many billions annually to maintain the civilian establishment at its present level.

What General Eisenhower must do then, in order to honor campaign pledges, is to devise a less expensive defense program or, by effecting economies in military operations, make federal dollars perform more work. The situation demands not only statesmanship of high quality on the part of the new President but the most earnest co-operation of Congress.

Complications Of Mumps

Mumps was described in the fifth century by Hippocrates. Typical of men through the ages, he was more interested in complications of the disease. Apparently the cause was not important to these old timers. It escaped detection until 1934 when a virus was established as the culprit. Modern physicians, on the other hand, have stressed the cause, whereas their patients are more interested in treatment.

The announcement that a certain virus is responsible for mumps was a signal to dozens of research teams to start work on a vaccine for treatment and prevention. At least four have been prepared. One, which was obtained from monkeys, appeared more promising than the others because following its use, there was an increase in the protective antibodies circulating in the blood. Unfortunately, the vaccine did not afford enough protection but research will continue in the hope of discovering a product that will tide an exposed adult over the incubation period.

Proof of the virus as a cause has not been of particular help so far as treatment is concerned. Gamma globulin, effective in measles, has little or no influence on mumps. The sulfonamides are of no value and the same can be said of the antibiotics. Aureomycin was thought to be the exception, but in a recent report many of the claims were refuted, which leaves us just where we started. In this study, two identical groups of mumps patients were treated; one symptomatically and the other with aureomycin. There was no difference in the duration of fever or glandular swelling. In addition, aureomycin was of no benefit in the after-effects of the disease.

Mumps is partial to children and, in 75 per cent of the cases, masquerades as a cold during the first few days of the illness. Headache, vomiting, generalized aches and pains, and loss of appetite are symptoms. The temperature rarely rises above 103 degrees F, unless complications appear, at which time it may shoot to 106 degrees F. Following the short prodromal period, the parotid glands on one or both sides of the jaw begin to enlarge; the peculiar feeling associated with swelling is described as "drawing" or "puckering." The sensation is accentuated by sipping lemon juice or vinegar, a procedure sometimes used as a test for mumps.

With enlargement of the parotid glands, located in front of and below the ears, the lobes of the ears are in the center of the swelling. Pressure is painful and it is difficult to open the jaw. Both glands are affected in 70 to 80 per cent of all the cases, but now and then involvement of one precedes the other by a week to 10 days. Occasionally the interval may be several weeks. Involvement of both sides is more uncomfortable and the facial appearance is distorted beyond recognition.

Orchitis is the most frequent complication. It occurs in approximately 20 to 35 per cent of all male adults, but is rare in boys. Sterility is not a common aftermath of orchitis, and in this respect, the enlargement often is blamed unnecessarily. Brain involvement is another complication which, in the opinion of many authorities, takes place more often than we have been led to believe. Apparently the disorder is so mild it goes unrecognized. So far as complications are concerned, it makes little difference whether the individual stays in bed or walks about.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Eisenhower-Truman Confab Recalls Hoover Meeting With Roosevelt; Dodge Had RFC Loan 19 Years; Cain Wants To Be Sergeant-At-Arms

WASHINGTON — It's been 20 years almost to the day that another President-elect called on an outgoing President, as Dwight D. Eisenhower calls on Harry S. Truman today.

President Hoover was bitter then, just as President Truman is today. All sorts of charges had been hurled at his administration, just as charges have been hurled at Truman by the man he once proposed for President of the United States.

However, for the good of the country, as today, they sat down together.

With them sat grave, long-faced Raymond Moley, top Roosevelt brain trust who later quarreled with his boss and has been bitterly against the Democrats since; also cherub-faced Ogden Mills, secretary of the Treasury. Hoover talked in a monotone, at times plaintively. He reviewed the tobagans slide of British finances, told of the dangerous economic state of the world. The President-elect listened, talked little.

Finally Mr. Hoover said: "Now, Governor Roosevelt, I wonder if I could speak to you alone."

The others withdrew. Hoover talked longer to the President-elect regarding Britain's desperate condition.

Coming out of the White House later, Governor Roosevelt told Moley: "We're not going back. I don't want to get mixed up in this."

Today, 20 years later, Eisenhower likewise declines to share responsibility for decisions until he assumes office. But the time between election and inauguration is shorter now, and at least two of his representatives are working with the outgoing administration.

Ike's Budget Adviser
It's a 100-to-1 bet that Joseph Dodge, the Eisenhower adviser on budget problems, will not become secretary of the Treasury or budget director, as some observers have speculated.

For some of Ike's advisers aren't at all happy about the discovery that Dodge borrowed money from the RFC for his Detroit bank in 1933 and did not pay it back until this year. They feel that with the Republican party having talked loudly about "keeping out of the red," Eisenhower couldn't afford to appoint a man whose bank has been in the red to the government for 19 years.

Dodge has been president of the Detroit bank since 1933. On Dec. 31, 1933, the bank borrowed $4,000,000 from the RFC in order to keep from folding.

Repayments on the loan were scattered and irregular. By the beginning of this year, the bank still owed $2,000,000. But strangely this large sum was suddenly paid up in full on May 20, 1952. In order to pay it, the bank issued new preferred stock to private investors.

Mr. Dodge is still president of the bank, on loan to General Eisenhower.

New Sergeant-At-Arms

Washington's lame-duck Sen. Harry Cain is so reluctant to leave the Senate that he is pulling strings to get the relatively unimportant job of sergeant-at-arms.

This has brought him into a backstage clash with New York's powerful Congressman Dan Reed, who is boosting his son, Bill, for the post. The junior Reed, who is now deputy sergeant-at-arms and is counting on his daddy to help him move up.

Congressman Reed will pack a lot of weight in the next Congress as boss of the House Ways and Means Committee, which fixes the nation's taxes. But the Senate is known to be sympathetic to ex-members of its exclusive club; so senatorial courtesy will probably prevail and the ex-senator may get the job.

Senator Cain has whispered that he is anxious to take the step-down job for the sake of his wife, whom he almost divorced to marry a Senate secretary four years ago. Mrs. Cain prefers the Washington social whirl to the humdrum life of Tacoma, Wash.

NOTE—Senator Cain has told friends he can't figure out why he was defeated in a state that gave Eisenhower an easy majority. Chief reason was the drive and personality of his opponent, newly elected Senator "Scoop" Jackson. Another reason was Cain's close political liaison with Senator McCarthy. Whenever McCarthy needed anyone to speak for him on the Senate floor, Cain was always the first to do so.

Capital News Capsules

Russians and Prisoners — Madame Pandit, head of the Indian delegation to the United Nations, believes there is no chance whatever of arranging a truce in Korea even with Eisenhower directing the negotiations. Madame Pandit has talked secretly with Foreign Minister Vishinsky. Each time the Russians flatly refused to listen to any concession regarding prisoners of war.

Communists in Iran — The young Shah of Iran is making emergency plans to flee to Switzerland and eventually the United States. The Shah is so worried the Communist Tudeh party will seize the government that he has an Iranian air force plane on a 24-hour alert to fly him out of the country.

Russian Party — Georgi Zarubin, the new Russian ambassador, is going all-out on his campaign to win friends and influence people for Russia. At the embassy's recent lavish anniversary party, Zarubin greeted every guest with a big smile. Even more unbelievably, he consented to pose with American photographers for a series of gag pictures—one of them with 15 photographers surrounding him under the picture of Joe Stalin.

CIA Chief — Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, General Eisenhower's former chief of staff, is one of the few top Washington officials who will survive the Republican housecleaning. Eisenhower thinks Bedell is doing a bang-up job as head of our secret intelligence network and will keep him on. Eisenhower also knows that Bedell refused to issue a statement denouncing Senator McCarthy during the campaign when McCarthy misquoted the general's ideas about Stevenson and communism in Italy.

Tax Probe — The Bureau of Internal Revenue is casting an eye on the new so-called "dues" assessed by the National Association of Manufacturers for political purposes. Tax agents will also take a look at the way certain companies "loaned" billboard space to political candidates.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Some Hard Hard Facts

PARIS.

Almost exactly four years ago, after the 1948 election, President Truman decided that we did not really need to worry very much about the Soviet Union after all. The American rearmament program of James V. Forrestal was thereupon transformed into the American disarmament program of Louis A. Johnson. The Korean aggression followed a year and a half later.

The great question now looming ahead is infinitely larger. A rearmament program for the whole Western world was stimulated by Korea. It is placing a heavy strain on the United States and a far heavier strain on our allies. Eminent thinkers are again declaring that we do not really need to worry very much about the Soviet Union after all. Now, after the 1952 election, President-elect Eisenhower is going to have to decide whether to make the Forrestal-to-Johnson transition on a much bigger scale by abandoning the Western rearmament program.

Before exploring the reasons why Dwight D. Eisenhower will soon be called upon to make this fearful choice, it is a good idea to consider the hard facts of the world balance of power. They are more permanently instructive, after all, than fine-spun speculations about the inner thought processes of Joseph Stalin, as revealed at the recent Communist party congress in Moscow.

No Warning Time

From the vantage point of Gen. Matthew D. Ridgway's brand new Supreme Headquarters at Marly, three groups of hard facts possess central importance.

First, there is the disappearance of the time of warning. At Korea-time, the Western intelligence services were counting on two months' advance warning, by such signs as building up of ammunition stockpiles, before the Soviets threw their Eastern European armies against the West. In 1951, the estimated warning had gone down to one month. Now, to all intents, there is no time of warning at all. All the Russian divisions in East Germany are at full strength, forward stocking has been completed, and all other details of Russian military housekeeping are in apple pie order.

Second, the Soviets are fortunately highly unlikely to attack westwards with their present strength of 26 Russian divisions in East Germany; 1,500 aircraft in Eastern Europe; and the assorted satellite divisions. In the air, moreover, they are perhaps slightly weaker than at Korea-time. Fourteen months ago, the MIG-15 regiments were deployed out of East Germany, presumably to Manchuria. Replacement of these lost MIG-15 units is just short of being completed.

In all other respects, however, an impressive build-up of Soviet strength has gone steadily forward. Air units formerly equipped with obsolete aircraft have in almost all cases received jet-engine planes. A hundred twin-engine jet-bombers, capable of reaching almost any target in Europe or Britain, have appeared on the scene. The Russian divisions in East Germany have been given new arms throughout.

In the satellite armies, all captured German equipment has been exchanged for Soviet World War II material. Some satellite divisions are also getting new arms. The number of satellite divisions has increased from an estimated 60 to from 65 to 70. Four of the Polish divisions have been mechanized. And although satellite training and combat-worthiness is still considered spotty, the satellite armies have undoubtedly become a major power factor.

USSR Ready For War

Third, and perhaps most important of all, almost everything has now been done to permit, and to sustain a westward attack by much larger Soviet forces than those now in position in Eastern Europe. A tough old British brigadier once said to this reporter, "Watch the railroad platforms. If the other fellows haven't started lengthening the railroad platforms, you can sleep easy. But when they do, watch out." In effect, this is exactly what has happened.

In Eastern Europe today, extensive rail loading and unloading facilities of military capacity have now been constructed. Some double tracking has been done. Important forward repair shops for aircraft, tanks and the like have been completed. A huge airfield net has been built and is still being expanded. Altogether, the Soviets are now considered to have prepared all the necessary underpinnings for an attack on Western Europe with 100 divisions supported by from six to 8,000 aircraft.

None of these facts should be taken to mean, of course, that the Kremlin is going to mount an offensive against Western Europe, either now or in the immediate or even remote future. The point is that the Soviet Union is now ready for war, if war ever comes to seem advantageous to the Politburo.

There are other points in the balance of power that President-elect Eisenhower may well consider. There is the growing Soviet atomic stockpile, with its special meaning for the United States. There is the remarkable build-up of Soviet-Chinese air power in Manchuria and of the Chinese-North Korean forces in Korea. There is the striking proof of Soviet military productivity, afforded by the Kremlin's capacity to stage the big Far Eastern build-up with hardly any interruption of the build-up in Eastern Europe.

In any case, the hard facts are quite sufficient to show why Gen. Ridgway thinks that the Soviet threat to the Western world has certainly not lessened, and may have increased. The hard facts should also suggest why abandonment of the effort to strengthen the West is quite likely, some day, to make a new aggression tempt the Politburo, just as the Politburo was tempted to attack in Korea by the abandonment, four years ago, of the effort to strengthen America.

testimony that the committee heard.

Stanley Graze, was, until dismissed by Trygve Lie after he had testified before the McCarran Committee, a project officer of the United Nations Technical Assistance and Administration. This agency handled Point Four aid to countries through the United Nations. Prior to employment, he, an American citizen, was employed in the Treasury Department, War Production Board and the State Department. Asked whether disloyalty charges had been leveled against him, this colloquy followed:

"Senator Ferguson. Did you ever know whether or not a loyalty charge had been filed against you?"
"Mr. Graze. I decline to answer that question on the ground of the privilege of the Fifth Amendment." This is the essence of Graze's testimony:

"Mr. Morris. Are you presently engaged in espionage against the United States?"

"Mr. Graze. I decline to answer on the grounds of the Fifth Amendment."

"Mr. Graze. I was about to say that I could not conceive of a war at the present time between the United States and the Soviet Union, and as far as I am concerned I believe that such a war would be the worst catastrophe that could occur."

"Senator O'Connor. Suppose it would come?"

"Mr. Graze. I would defend the United States."

Pair Jailed In Crash To Return To Maryland

A Hagerstown man and woman who have been held in Mineral County (W.Va.) Jail since Saturday as a result of an automobile accident yesterday waived extradition to Maryland to face criminal charges.

The couple, identified as George William Miller, 28, and Doris Flint Swandol, 24, were arrested Saturday after the car in which they were riding allegedly struck a vehicle driven by Gerald Boswell, 51, of 823 Virginia Avenue, Cumberland.

Cpl. O. G. Webley of the Keyser detachment of West Virginia State Police said the car, driven by Miller, sideswiped Boswell's auto on U. S. Route 50 at Allegheny Front. Both drivers stopped after the accident and got into an argument, according to Cpl. Webley, who said Miller then drove off. Miller and the Swandol woman later were apprehended near Elk Garden by Cpl. Webley and an officer from the Grant County detachment of State Police.

Webley said Maryland State Police at Hagerstown have filed warrants as detainees against the pair. He said the car Miller was driving was found to have been a stolen vehicle, and that the Swandol woman was wanted on a charge of abandoning a minor child. Damage to Boswell's car was estimated at $500.

Civil Service Law To Be Aired

The Allegany County Delegation will meet with the Civil Service Board and the Mayor and City Council today at 9:30 a. m. in City Hall to discuss a proposed Civil Service Law for this city.

The meeting had been planned for tonight, but the time had to be changed because of a number of prior commitments of the legislators.

The text of the proposed bill was completed yesterday, the result of several months of work by the board and city officials. About a week ago, the Civil Service Board completed its work on amending the proposed law which failed to pass at the 1950 session of the General Assembly.

Pallbearers, all members of Lodge 437, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, were William W. Frey, Hubert W. Fleckenstein, Lawrence J. Helmstetter, Howard Brockey, John Cullen and Harry A. Hook.

Long Outlines

reasoning in the performance of his duties. You have always been backed 100 per cent. I have never torn up a traffic ticket nor asked a magistrate to do so. I have never interfered with an arrest nor with the natural functioning of the law after an arrest was made. Every complaint against an officer by a citizen has been treated in the fairest way I know. I have invited both the officer and the citizen to sit down with me in conference so that each could get the other's viewpoint and I would hear the whole story.

"Mr. Berry has told me that some officers object to this as being 'called on the carpet.' I don't believe the red-blooded men on the force feel that way. In fact, several of you have thanked me for the opportunity to defend your actions. Yet, if your grievance committee has a better, a more democratic, or more American way, I'll be the first to go along with it.

Points To Records

"You are aware that a police department is of necessity a semi-military organization. You are uniformed, armed and have the power of arrest. This could not be in our democracy if you were not also subject to rules, regulations and to the commands of superior officers. I am confident that you would never have sought appointment as a police officer if you were not aware of this and not sincerely interested in law enforcement and in assuming responsibility for protecting the citizenry. I am equally confident that the records you have compiled in bringing Cumberland to one of the safest and one of the most crime-free cities in the country would never have been accomplished if a man any less interested than you are, were filling your shoes. You are doing a good job.

"No man can serve two masters. I have no desire to supplant the chief's authority with my own. With the exception of some complaints that have been given directly to the Detective Bureau all my orders have gone through the chief. It has been and still is my belief that the chief should assume full responsibility for his department. He has had every opportunity and support from me to do so.

"Every appointment or change that I have made in the department has been made only after consultation with the city attorney or after requesting a ruling by the Civil Service Commission.

"Can a department be run with less politics than this. Doesn't this kind of support BUILD morale?" Here Long pointed out a suggestion by City Attorney Thomas B. Finan and sent to Berry that the grievance committee follow a three-point procedure in presenting grievances. This included to see the chief, conference with chief commissioner and committee and then if no solution was reached present it to the Mayor and Council.

Long concluded: "I am wholeheartedly in accord with the procedure but it does not lessen my personal interest in you, your problems and your grievances. My office is always open to you."

While there is nothing more important to the city than an efficient police force of high morale, there is no reason for its taking the limelight to the exclusion of all these other things.

"It ill becomes one who claims to be so zealous in the complete unrestricted exercise of the authority given him by the laws to ignore, defy, or call obsolete those sections of that law of which he does not personally approve. The voters of this city have twice in the past few years definitely indicated that they do not want this charter changed. Under Section 20 the Mayor is authorized to ask any commission for an accounting of the administration of his department."

"I am, therefore, calling upon the commissioner of police to give this accounting and indicate the method which he expects to pursue to correct the conditions complained of, but I do not expect him to do this through the newspaper or with the alibi or acrimonious accusations."

"Are Life Insurance companies subject to public supervision?"

Yes — by authorities set up under the laws of each of the 48 states

THE management of each life insurance company has the primary responsibility of fulfilling all obligations to its policyholders. Public supervision, in turn, supplements the responsibility of management.

Recognition by the states of the public interest in life insurance goes back more than 100 years. The first general insurance law was adopted in 1849. Six years later the first state insurance department was established to supervise the operation of the companies.

Today, each company has to meet the requirements of the laws and be licensed in every state in which it is admitted to do business. These laws vary from state to state.

These laws cover such things as the minimum standards for reserves and premiums to assure solvency; provisions in the policies the companies issue; the way they invest their money—and many other points.

The affairs of the company are subject to continuous supervision and periodic examination by state supervisory authorities. Each company has to report in detail to these states each year on forms prescribed by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners.

The periodic examinations cover such things as the general conduct of the business, the solvency of the company, the type and value of its investments and the character of service to its policyholders.

Both the yearly reports submitted by the companies and the reports of examination made by the supervisory authorities are matters of public record.

FTC Hearings Apple Price Fix Case Are Begun

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—A witness denied today the Appalachian Apple Service, Inc., used a joint grower-processor committee in raw apple price deals.

Carroll R. Miller, Martinsburg, W. Va., told Trade Commission Hearing Examiner Frank Hier that such a joint committee did not exist in fact.

"The term was used for description," Miller said. "I have used the term as a convenient handle to describe the group."

Miller, secretary-manager of Appalachian Service, was the first witness called at a hearing on a commission complaint that Appalachian and five apple processing companies engage in unfair competition.

In addition to Appalachian, a trade association operating in Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania, the complaint names the C. H. Musselman Co., Biglerville, Pa.; National Fruit Product Co., Inc., Winchester, Va.; Knouse Foods Cooperative, Inc., Peach Glen, Pa.; Bowman Apple Products Co., Inc., Mount Jackson, Va.; and Shenandoah Valley Apple Cider & Vinegar Corp., Winchester, Va.

The commission has charged that they engaged in a planned common course of action to fix prices for raw apples paid by the processors and to divert delivery of raw apples for processing to maintain a price scale.

Counsel for the companies and the government failed to reach an agreement for settlement at a conference just prior to the opening of the hearing today.

The government offered evidence designed to show that there was a joint grower-processor committee which dealt with prices.

This included a 1950 resolution stating that "the six-man growers half of the joint grower-processor committee for Appalachian" felt that it would take a price scale based on not less than $3.50 per hundred pounds for Class A U. S. One canners to channel enough apples to processors from that crop.

The government also offered evidence in a letter by Appalachian inviting processors to a meeting Aug. 15, 1950, with the growers committee.

The letter was addressed to M. E. Knouse, of the Knouse Company; John A. Hauser, of the Musselman Company; J. Pinckney Arthur, of the Shenandoah Company; Gordon D. Bowman of the Bowman Company, and Layton Stockdale, of Winchester.

Named as grower committee members in the letter were Blackburn Moore and William F. Young of Virginia; Fred Greist and Richard McDonald of Pennsylvania; John Casper of Maryland, and Henry W. Miller of West Virginia.

Asked what part, if any, the processors played in arriving at the $3.50 price figure, Miller replied "None, that I can say offhand."

He said it was his recollection that many factors were weighed.

Miller, after repeating that the term "Joint Grower-Processor Committee" was used merely as a "convenient handle to describe the group," said growers met with processors to learn such market demands as packs and volume.

The witness said he was not certain if processors attended the association's marketing clinic in 1950, but added in reply to another question that it was the general practice for processors to be represented.

Attendance is on an invitation basis, he said, to keep the group small enough for effective work. The government contends that usually the "Joint Grower-Processor Committee" meets soon after the marketing clinic to make decisions on prices for raw apples.

Varied Activities Planned By Flintstone FHA Chapter

The Flintstone Chapter of the Future Homemakers of America has one of the most active programs of the many organizations at Flintstone High School.

The chapter observed National F. H. A. Week recently by sponsoring the following projects:

A display of the eighth purpose of the club, "To work for good home and family life for all," clean-up day in the Home Economics Department, Preparing the evening meal at home, arranged an FHA bulletin board, wore FHA colors to indicate the significance of FHA week.

On Saturday, the girls cleaned house for mothers, and Sunday, all went to the same church to observe National FHA Sunday.

The Flintstone chapter in September made plans for initiating 23 new members. The group also completed plans for the 1952-53 school year.

The projects include contributions of small kitchen and sewing equipment to the Anatolia College in Greece, preparation of a Christmas basket for a needy family and improvements in the Home Economics Department.

The club will also sponsor a cash award to the outstanding senior girl in home economics, Valentine dance for FFA boys, an Easter Basket Walk for the school, a variety show, the annual Career Day program and a mother-daughter banquet.

The chapter will send girls to the state FHA meeting in Baltimore next spring. At this meeting, Virginia Shipway, president of the Flintstone chapter, will be installed as state president.

The Homemaking program is one of the basic courses of Flintstone High School. Ninety-three per cent of the graduates are in their own homes or in related work.

Flintstone High School has had a Vocational Home Economics Department since 1926. The Department meets federal as well as state and county requirements.

The course covers foods and their preparation, clothing construction, child care, home nursing and budget making.

Officers are president, Virginia Shipway; vice president, Leah Robinette; secretary, Natalie Mann, and treasurer, Ramona Mauzy. The club advisor is Mrs. Lois McMillan.

New Members of F.H.A. are Joyce Dolly, Charlotte Hout, Bonnie Whorton, Pudy Slider, Buelah Mullenax, Betty Turner, Delores Clites, Mary Ashkettle, Mary Robinson, Hope Golden, Jean Stottlemeyer, Anna Rinker, Connie Dixon, Margaret Merica, Shirley Twigg, Sandra Shipley, Naomi Heaven, Ruth McDonald, Kay Hofe, Dorothy Baker and Vera L. ## Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 17. (INS)—Come spring "Ember Days," which now gets the title of "All Roads Lead to Rome," will be filmed in Rome, of course. Sam Zimbalist, who's working to get the picture ready, has paged Kirk Douglas for the lead opposite Ava Gardner. That's because Kirk pleased all the powers that be at MGM in "The Bad and the Beautiful," which he made with Lana Turner.

"All Roads" is the story of a priest who has 24 hours given him by the church before he takes his final vows.

Gottfried Reinhardt has been named as the director, and this, according to Sam, is to be one of MGM's important 1953 pictures.

Sixty-three days a year doesn't give much time for outside work, but Eve Arden, who has that much time out of her TV show, "Our Miss Brooks," has agreed to make a picture in that length of time.

Next summer she will star in "My Five Husbands" for Eddie Small. It's about a school teacher who presides over a nursery class, but this teacher won't be our Miss Brooks.

Speaking of school teachers, I like very much Eve's idea to have an annual Teacher's Tuesday (on the order of Mother's Day), which will honor the school marm who spend their time training our children.

Looked twice when I saw a slender figure in a bright red dress and matching hat walk across the lawn of the Beverly Hills Hotel. I wanted to be sure it was Norma Shearer, and it was.

She had just arrived with Marty Arrouge from New York. As I thought, Norma is not going to do the play on Broadway. Why should she? She says she will never script until she finds just the right script and that will be, I suspect, a movie.

Norma put Katherine Thalberg in Vassar, and Irving Thalberg, Jr. will go to Stanford. She rented her house at the beach to Joe Moskowitz, and with just herself and Marty to think of, she'll continue to live at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

Actor Louis Jourdan won't be back in the USA for months. He's in his native France with his wife and baby, and while in Paris he ran into Anatol Litvak, who asked him to take an important role with Kirk Douglas in "The girl on the Via Flaminia."

I should think this title might have to be changed since VIA Flaminia is obviously in Rome.

Can you say "no" without giving offense? It is the big test of your tact and here is a winning formula!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

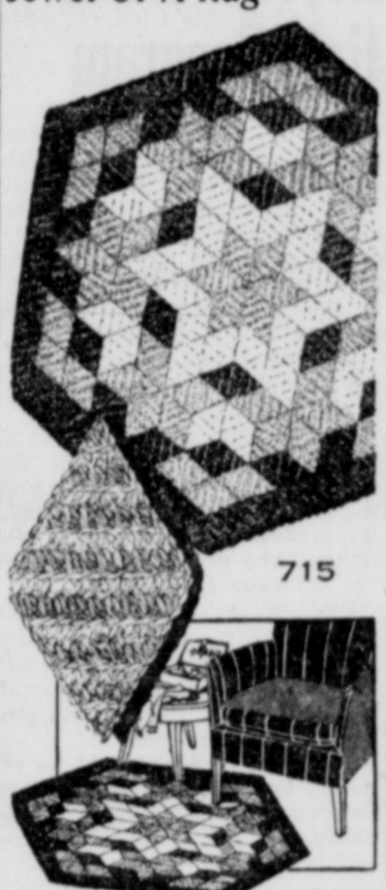

Others will see any faults you have through rose-colored glasses if you always treat them with the one charm that never fails—tact.

It is easy to be tactful in pleasant situations; the words and deeds needed to grace your ways fairly spring to your mind. But how to say "no" tactfully taxes your powers. How to say "no" and make the recipient like it is something many never learn.

Saying "No" Tactfully
Tact is something that increases pleasure or eases pain; sometimes it does both at once. Keeping this in mind helps materially in working out a tactful "no." You can be sure any turn-down you give will be tactful if it always contains these five parts:

1. It must be handled with a courteous sympathy and understanding of the other's viewpoint.

Why TV Tires Your Eyes

Of course, TV fans, who read this column, will think I am prejudiced because I am in the newspaper business, but I assure you I have approached the subject with an open mind and eyes.

The other night I was watching a program with George Jessel, and the star, and it was scheduled to run for an hour and probably did, but not for me. I pulled down the curtain after 25 minutes. It reminded me of an experience I had years ago.

In the days when wealth impressed me before the Truman dollar, a rich friend invited my wife and me to a swell dinner in a private room at the Ritz to welcome a newcomer from the provinces to New York where it was predicted he would set the town on fire. He showed up in white tie and tails while the rest of us men stuck to Tuxedos. We sat in rapt attention, expecting this guest from Cleveland to hold us spellbound. First he put his arm carelessly around the back of my wife's chair. She happened to be sitting next to him. As I observed this gesture, I remarked, "My missus certainly gets a bad break at these big affairs. She always seems to be placed next to the village Romeo who thinks he is irresistible." This shook things up a little.

Then, having been billed as the life of the party, he started to recite "funny" stories. We listened to a couple and greeted the claxons with loud yawns. Finally, one or two of us were very rude and told the finish as soon he would start the introduction. I also knew most of the answers to the gags on the aforesaid television show. Ventriloquists are a dime a dozen on TV. Every other act, especially on Sunday nights, seems to have a dummy who smokes and talks while his master picks his teeth. Grantland Rice and I came back together from the first World War on a transport called the Rydam, and, recognizing our ability, Colonel Frank Knox, the commanding officer made us joint adjutants. Among our duties were to get the nurses and casual travelers, like aviators, in bed by 10 and to organize a show. We began to screen the ship for talent, only to find every other guy was a whistler, and all wanted to appear. Before we got through they nearly blew out the sides of the boat. We could have used a ventriloquist.

When I was a young fellow, vaudeville was a very popular form of entertainment and cheap. At the Keith houses the show ran all day until midnight, and you could buy a ticket and sit as long as you could stand it. In order to clear the theater of loafers and repeaters, the management would pick out the worst act it could find and put it on every once in a while.

Retaining Good Will

Hardly a single employee would answer with anything but a good-humored "yes" and plunge in to get the report finished as quickly as possible. In any other situation, a mother refusing her child's request or, perhaps, the denial of a favor asked by a friend, the same kind of formula and reasoning would prove effective.

Whenever you must say "no" you run the risk of some loss of affection, good will, faith or respect from the person you are denying. But the risk of any loss approaches the minimum when you sincerely try to reduce the blow with a real, mature desire to prevent hurt and provide solace!

rearmament programs ever solved the problems of war.

"Senator Smith. You do not think we ought to have rearmament?"

"Mr. Graze. I don't believe rearmament is the answer. I believe the United Nations is the answer. I believe that the Armament Commission of the United Nations should solve the problem."

I cite this one instance. I have already written several articles on this subject quoting testimony and will write more.

The position that an American citizen who is a Russian agent, a spy against his own country or a subversive Communist, once he has been employed by the United Nations, has found sanctuary from the American government, is untenable and will never be tolerated by the American people.

STARTS TOMORROW WEDNESDAY

Taft and General Eisenhower to write the foreign policy plank of the Republican National Convention and it was so satisfactory to both wings of the party that it didn't create a controversy at all — a task of skillful presentation that the party leaders who had feared a split on that issue deeply appreciated.

While Mr. Dulles enjoys good personal relations with Prime Minister Churchill and Anthony Eden, the British press have at times been critical of him especially for his part in writing the Japanese peace treaty. Certain British interests wanted the treaty to be punitive and to destroy Japan as a possible competitor in shipping in the Pacific. Also, some of the British interests wanted Japan to be compelled to trade with Red China and play ball with the Communists while Mr. Dulles wanted the Japanese to stick to the Chinese Nationalists in accordance with American policy.

Best Man For Job
The so-called "liberation" policy for the satellites of Russia in Europe has been attributed to Mr. Dulles. This has aroused the ire of certain critics in Britain and on the Continent but the hullabaloo is largely a failure abroad on the part of Europeans to understand during the campaign the distortions of American politics. For Mr. Dulles is not a believer in preventive war but leans rather to the side which hopes for psychological instead of military maneuvers in satellite countries to weaken Russia's hold on the smaller countries under her domination.

It will be refreshing, indeed, to have as secretary of State a man who is not overawed by the devious ways of British diplomacy and yet who knows how to work with Britain and the other old-world countries on European matters while at the same time possessing a thorough knowledge of Korea, Japan and Far Eastern problems. For not only did Mr. Dulles write the peace treaty with Japan but he had a major part in writing the Pacific Security Pact. This agreement is regarded today as the cornerstone of a peace structure in the Pacific comparable to the North Atlantic Treaty for Europe which Mr. Dulles helped substantially to get ratified by the Senate.

Certainly for experience and knowledge Mr. Dulles is the best man in the United States today for secretary of State — and in all probability his designation for the post will be announced in the next few days.

Maryland Plummet To Eighth Place In Football Poll

Terps' Defeat By Mississippi Brings Change

Losers Fail To Get 1st Place Vote As Spartans Set Pace

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (AP)—Maryland was beaten by Mississippi; Georgia Tech had a squeaker against Alabama and the experts can't make up their minds about the outcome of next Saturday's big game between Southern California and U.C.L.A. As a result it's Michigan State in a breeze for first place in the national football rankings this week.

Coach Biggie Munn's "monsters"—monstrous only in performance, not in size—made their own breaks and grabbed off the resulting fumbles to beat Notre Dame 21-3 last Saturday. That feat, plus the other happenings, gave Michigan State nearly two thirds of the first place votes of the sports writers and broadcasters participating in the weekly Associated Press ranking poll.

Get 80 1st Place Votes

Out of 127 experts casting ballots this week, 80 named Michigan State first and nobody placed the "monsters" lower than fifth. The total score on the usual basis of ten points for first, nine for second, etc., was 1,168.

Georgia Tech retained second place with 41 first-place votes as compared to 32 a week ago and 968 points. That apparently was because of the indecision about the relative strength of UCLA and USC.

Between them, these two Pacific Coast powers, who will fight it out in the Rose Bowl next Saturday, polled nearly 1,900 points. But they were so evenly divided that UCLA edged out USC for third place, 968 points to 911, but Southern California drew more first place votes, 11 to 9.

Terps Take Plunge

Below this top four, the other "big" teams were pretty well bunched as a second division. The principal changes this week were Maryland's fall from third place to eighth and Mississippi's corresponding rise from eleventh to sixth.

Maryland, rated first on 24 ballots of week ago, didn't get a single first place vote after its 21-14 loss to unbeaten but twice-tied Mississippi. Oklahoma, which had experienced a similar drop after last week's loss to Notre Dame, bounced right back into fifth place with 542 points, followed by Mississippi, Tennessee, Maryland, Notre Dame and Texas.

Rankings of the leaders on a 10-9-8-etc. basis season records and first-place votes in parentheses:

Christ Is Named Player Of Week For Second Time

Bobby Christ, LaSalle High School halfback, has been named the Player of the Week for the second time this season for his brilliant performance in LaSalle's 63-0 win over the West Virginia School for the Deaf Friday night.

Christ scored four touchdowns and 27 points against Romney's Lions.

The Knights of Columbus Selection Committee will name the Player of the Year from the ten grid-ers already selected and the player chosen in the Thanksgiving Day game between Allegany and Fort Hill.

Christ is the third LaSalle player chosen. Others were Paul Ackerman and Harold Hudson.

Jim Hoffman, Dave Walton, Charles Elrich and Dick Rank, of Allegany, and John McVicker, Jim Farris and Bob Schade of Fort Hill are the other Player of the Year nominees.

McGreedy Sets Two New Records In K-C League

Gene McGreedy hung up a pair of season records in the Knights of Columbus Bowling League last night when he spilled 228 pins in a single game and 552 magnets in three games as the Grand Knights defeated the Guards on the Club Alleys by the score of 3-0.

The front-running Chancellors made it two out of three from the runner-up Recorders.

Other high scorers were Tom McGeady, Chancellors, 476; "Ike" Law, Recorders, 421, and Frank Stakem, Guards, 457. The standings:

JOCKEYS REFUSE TO RIDE AT BOWIE—This was the scene in the jockeys' room at the Bowie (Md.) Race Track yesterday as the jockeys refused to ride because they said the entirely new racing strip was unsafe. Leading the conversation (at right, holding cigarette) is Jockey James Lynch of Albany, N. Y., who is vice president of the local jockey guild. Others are unidentified in this picture. Bowie, Larry MacPhail's new two million dollar track, opened with a colossal flop. (Story on Page 10).

ODC Favors Parkway Klotz Heads Generals
McKeldin OKs Merger Maybe Tatum Is Right
By C. V. BURNS

Bob Dougherty wants Cumberland citizens to know that at the recent meeting of the Maryland League for Sportsmen, Inc., here, the Cumberland Outdoor Club voted in favor of the C. & O. Parkway Plan.

In fact, the Outdoor Club went on record in favor of the plan back in 1949, Dougherty says.

Washington and Frederick county delegates voted against the Parkway plan at the October session here and they succeeded in swaying the voting delegates from other sections of the state. The local club was outvoted about 9 to 1.

"We're naturally for a project of this type because it would benefit Cumberland," Dougherty declared. "Our club would benefit also because it owns some land about 27 miles from Cumberland adjacent to the canal property."

At the league's October session here, a resolution was approved opposing the merging of the Water Pollution Control Commission with the State Health Department but Governor Theodore R. McKeldin disagrees with the sportsmen and favors the action taken by the Sobeloff Committee which favors the merger.

The governor points out that the Commission "found duplication of effort and machinery in the matter of water pollution control." He believes that the merger would mean increased efficiency and would benefit, of course, not only the general taxpayers, but also that specific group of taxpayers concerned with conservation of natural resources in the interests of sportsmen.

Opposition to the merger is voiced by the League because it feels that the health department is primarily interested in water pollution only when it endangers the health of citizens, and seldom conducts clean-stream programs merely to further recreational uses or better fish environment.

Greg Johnson writes that Sammy Palumbo, who has been riding since 1927, will be shooting for the coveted honor of having won 600 races at Charles Town when the West Virginia track opens its meeting November 29.

Sammy now has 583 winners there and can reach the 600 mark with one winner a day during the 17-day session.

Since snow is forecast several times during the early part of December, Sammy may have to borrow one of Santa Claus' reindeer to reach the coveted goal of 600.

Louis "Red" Klotz, former player-coach of the Cumberland Dukes basketball team, now plays the same role with the Washington Generals, a new cage aggregation.

The Generals' roster is supposed to be composed of leading independent court players and every man is said to be a seasoned campaigner in professional ranks.

Norman Hayes, the young Boston middleweight, who flattened Joey DeJohn in Detroit last week, after losing a previous match to Lee Sala, is managed by Johnny Buckley.

Buckley is the veteran manager who brought Wolf Larsen here many years ago for a fight with Fay Keiser at the Maryland Theatre.

Johnny has handled many good boxers during his long career and he's tops as a story teller.

Interstate Loop Franchise Given To Hazleton, Pa.

YORK, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP)—Hazleton, Pa., today was admitted to the Class B Interstate Baseball League, replacing Wilmington, Delaware.

President Gerald P. Nugent announced that the Wilmington franchise had been awarded to a group of Hazleton interests headed by Ed Kirschner, who formerly operated Eastern and North Atlantic League franchises in the Pennsylvania city.

Kirschner said the new Hazleton entry will have a working agreement with the Philadelphia Phillies, who formerly operated the Wilmington team.

Pirates To Get Initial Call At Draft Meeting

Bait Includes Many Former Big Leaguers

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (AP)—Anybody wants to buy a former no-hit no-run pitcher for only $10,000? Or perhaps an ex-major league batting champion for the same small fee?

Step right up, gents, and no shoving, please. The annual draft starts Dec. 1 at Phoenix, Ariz. Thousands of minor league players to choose from, young ones, old ones and in between. Take your pick. Plenty of bargains. No guarantees, however.

First call goes to Pittsburgh where the Pirates earned the first crack at the selectable players by finishing in the National League cellar. Next comes Detroit, the basement dwellers in the American League, and so on through Brooklyn, No. 15 and the World Champion New York Yankees, 16th and last.

If Branch Rickey still is interested in the rehabilitation of Rex Barney, the former no-hit pitcher of the Dodgers, who suddenly found himself in the minors because he couldn't find the area of home plate, here is his chance. The Dodgers have quit on their wild man and cast the 28-year-old right-hander into the draft. He can be selected off the St. Paul club.

Should Rickey, the former Brooklyn boss who now runs the Pirates, fail to show any surviving interest in Barney, he can turn his attention to the Indianapolis club and pluck one, Harold "Pete" Reiser. The latter is the same Reiser who led the National League hitters in 1941 and gave promise of developing into one of the great stars of the game. Pete is only 32.

Remember Hank Borowy, the pitcher the Yankees once sold to the Cubs for $100,000? The right-hander, now with Buffalo, can be had for one tenth of that sum. So can Dave "Boo" Ferriss of Louisville. So can such former stars like Hal Gregg, Buddy Kerr, Allen Gettel, Max West, Gene Mauch, Bill Stevens, Chuck Diering, Jack Banta and a host of others.

Seven Lasted Season
Last year the majors drafted 18 players at a cost of $169,000. Only seven managed to last out the season. None played regularly although some distinguished themselves as part-time workmen.

The big league clubs may fare better with the 1953 crop of draftees. Anyway, it's a cinch they'll keep trying.

Hannah Predicts Big Ten Schools Will Shun Bowls

Believes 1954 Will End Rose Bowl Pact

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Dr. John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State College, predicted today that the Big Ten will not renew its Rose Bowl contract after the present agreement expires in 1954.

The Big Ten and Pacific Coast Conference are committed to a three-year pact, beginning with the Jan. 1, 1952 game. It ends Jan. 1, 1954.

Hannah said also he believes the presidents of the Pacific Coast Conference colleges "think about as I do" on the question of eliminating post-season bowl games.

Hannah is chairman of a special committee of the American Council on Education which recently concluded a nationwide investigation into evils of college sports—with emphasis on football.

Among other things, the committee has recommended an end to all gridiron "bowl" games and post-season tournaments in other sports.

The Michigan State president gave his views in a copyrighted interview with U. S. News-World Report, weekly news magazine.

His remarks about the Big Ten dropping out of the Rose Bowl gained significance from the fact that next year, for the first time, Michigan State will become a full-fledged member of the Big Ten and eligible to vote on bowl games.

With Hannah on record as opposing post-season games, Michigan State's vote next year might be decisive in Big Ten balloting on the question of further bowl competition. Past conference votes on the issue are reported to have been extremely close.

Sports Grill

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (INS)—A reader wants to know which is the most popular sport in the United States?

The answer is easy. It is horse racing. And it doesn't matter much whether the horses run, trot or pace. The public goes for the horse and the figures prove it.

Baseball attendance throughout the country fell off more than 15,000,000 this year. On the whole, hockey, football, tennis, basketball and track and field events have had fewer paying cash customers.

Why? Economics, television, the shrunken dollar and the war have been blamed, separately and collectively.

But none of those reasons applied to racing for attendance has been up everywhere—as much as 20 per cent at some tracks—and the betting at the tracks alone has soared by hundreds of millions of dollars.

Perhaps it would be more accurate to say that the most popular sport is gambling. Because if there were no betting at the tracks there would be virtually no attendance, for who would spend money and a whole afternoon just to watch about 10 minutes of actual racing spread over eight races half an hour apart?

In fact, if there were no betting, there would be no racing. Racing is merely a handy medium for gambling.

How fast the gambling fever spreads and grows may be gleaned from this: Attendance has soared at the two local trotting and pacing tracks in the last three years from 750,000 to well over 3,000,000.

At the same time the betting has increased from $118,000,000 to $185,000,000.

And racing is the one sport which television can't hurt. Indeed, the telecasting of a big stake merely helps to show the thrill of the race itself while advertising the sport as a betting medium.

The football people are desperately trying to find some plan whereby they can receive the big income TV provides and at the same time not hurt attendance at games. Especially those of the smaller colleges, not televised.

No remedial formula has yet been devised.

But the football people at least are trying. The baseball solons—particularly those in the major leagues—are short-sighted as usual.

The majors are rapidly cutting their own throats. There were 16 fewer minor leagues in operation this past year and some of them might have been saved by a wiser TV policy and by less waste of huge sums for untried bonus players.

ROBBED—Michigan State football captain Don McAuliffe was held up and robbed of 16 Notre Dame-State tickets at gun point last Tuesday, the Lansing State Journal reported yesterday. The paper said that McAuliffe, as a senior and team captain was entitled to eight free tickets and given to option to purchase eight more. McAuliffe was not available for comment.

Spartan Leader Held up, Robbed Of Grid Tickets

College Officials Refuse To Comment

EAST LANSING, Mich., Nov. 17 (INS)—Don McAuliffe, captain of the Michigan State College football team, was reported today to have been robbed of 16 tickets for the MSC-Notre Dame game and state police said an inquiry is under way.

The holdup man reportedly approached McAuliffe on the East Lansing campus last week, asking if the athlete could obtain some tickets for him.

Later the stranger appeared at McAuliffe's apartment, pulled a gun and robbed the star halfback of the tickets and escaped in a waiting automobile after warning the youth not to follow him.

It was understood that McAuliffe had been allotted a certain number of tickets as captain and senior and had obtained others from friends.

Coach Clarence "Biggie" Munn, to whom McAuliffe referred newsmen for comment on the robbery said: "It is a dead issue and we'd prefer to let it die. Besides I have no authority to talk about it."

Ralph Young, athletic director, was reported out of the city and his assistant, John Morris, said: "We can't talk about this. We've had enough of those things as it is."

State police said the school's police department was handling the investigation.

The school knew the seat numbers but denied against questioning persons who used them at the game. They felt the occupants probably bought the seats from scalpers and would not know the identity of the hoodlum.

Campus police were unable to spot the bandit in the football crowds Saturday. They theorized that he passed the tickets to a confederate after the robbery and fled town.

Betting at all tracks during the 633-day season was a record $607,750,005, as against the previous high of $536,200,513 set last year in 651 days.

Olson And Sala Clash Thursday

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (AP)—Ranking fighters in every class from the featherweights up make this a lively week for boxing fans. In probably the top bout of the week, Carl "Bobo" Olson, the clever middleweight contender from Hawaii, takes on Lee Sala of Donora, Pa., in a ten rounder at San Francisco Thursday night.

That bout won't be telecast across the country but TV spectators in some sections of the nation have fights to look at Wednesday and Friday.

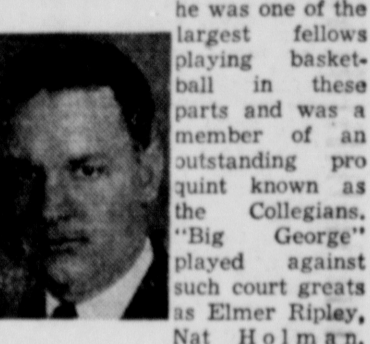

The Wednesday night CBS radio-TV show will come out of St. Louis where high-ranking feather Willie Pep of Hartford, Conn., and Fabula Chavez of Los Angeles will trade punches in a ten rounder.

Lightweight contenders Paddy DeMarco of Brooklyn and Henry Davis of Honolulu will meet in the top ten at Madison Square Garden Friday night. NBC will telecast.

On The Line

by Bob Considine

MEXICO CITY—(INS)—A man's a fool, my newspaper friend swore, to interview U. S. Ambassador to Mexico Bill O'Dwyer. A man would get himself a one-day story, my friend said, but would have to spend the next six months explaining Mr. Ambassador's vehement denial to the boss.

Make a gag of it, my friend suggested. Print the ambassador's denial first and follow it up the next day with the interview. That would throw everybody off guard and reason, he explained.

But that didn't seem fair. So before stepping into one of American's 10,000 h.p. kites with Rex Smith, prominent reformed editor, the office wired the ambassador that I'd like to see him. O'Dwyer was more than cooperative. Here's the dope, subject to his revision:

1.—He has no thought of giving up his American citizenship.

2.—As will other politically appointed ambassadors and ministers he will offer his resignation to the new President. He expects it to be accepted.

3.—He would like to remain in Mexico for several reasons, not necessarily named in the order of their importance:

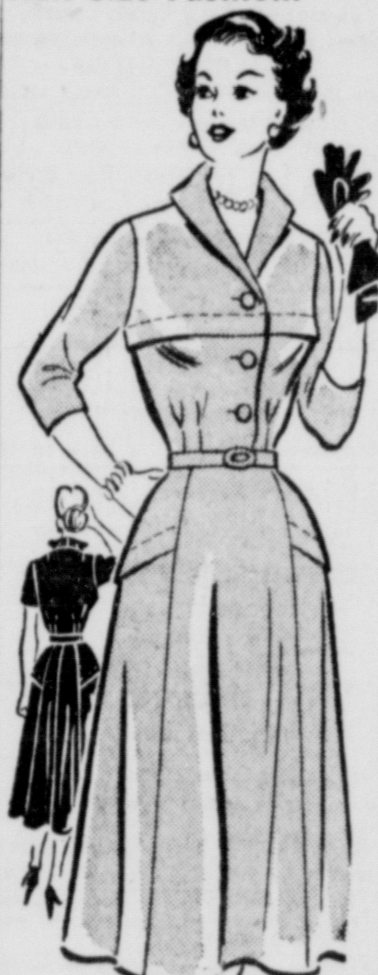

(A) He feels that if he returns to New York it would be an invitation for "every ambitious prosecutor" to get him in a witness chair. He is 62, his heart has been in less than excellent condition, and, as he put it, he feels he doesn't want to spend the rest of his life reiterating the innocence which he maintains should be apparent to all.

(B) He likes Mexico and Mexicans (and from the respect shown to him on the streets and in the Mexican press the feeling appears to be mutual.) President Aleman sent him his personal plane to return him from the Kefauver hearings.

(C) He feels there are good business opportunities in Mexico, especially those involving trade and other relations between the two republics. His only income after the first of the year will be $6,000 a year, half of his $12,000 pension as an ex-mayor of New York. He assigned the other half to Mrs. O'Dwyer.

I asked the ambassador about his most recent denial of a story by a reputable reporter. He said he was sorry he felt forced to do it, but it touched on something very close to him: U. S.-Mexican relations. The story, he said, implied that he "planned" to do this and that, particularly become an adviser to Mexican law firms.

Baering Down On The News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER (Distributed by INS)

Forwarding The Mail
All subsequent gossip about the solidity of the South must be taken with a jigger of maulage.

Four southern states went as Republican as the Union League.

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. Too bad maybe Virginia forgot there was a Stevenson.

The other three bolters for the northern door were Texas, Tennessee and Florida. We know Ike was born in Texas, you can always work Tennessee into the second chorus, and Florida made the fourth hand at bridge.

Hoover carried five southern bailiwicks in 1928. But Herbert and Scarlett O'Hara went with the wind in different directions.

Now, Ike comes forth and splits the South up the back like a salt mackerel. He harvested twice as many votes as Herbert. But don't forget a southerner can vote Republican and remain a Democrat. Does it with mirrors.

New Faces—1953
After adjusting their swivel chairs to infinity the land-locked Democrats are destroying their desks.

The first Republican flanker showed up in the Pentagon after 20 years. The war is on five fronts.

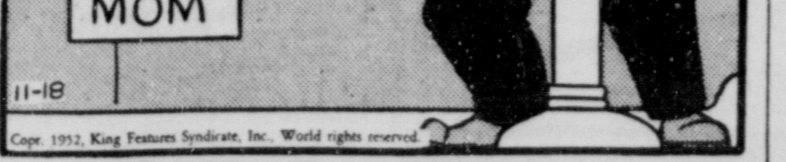

The Democrats threaten to hide the blueprints to the only architectural memorial to the star-fish.

Any industrial firm or mercantile organization desiring experienced clock-watchers can trap 'em with very little bait.

A Washington office-holder is now doing a hamlet to the skull of power. He is soliloquizing. "Lemme see, what did I used to do for a living?"

Twenty years on the fat of the land will pile it up around your ears. Let's take some of those tunnel generals and admirals who shuttled between large administration buildings. Ike is going to get rid of them so fast their last month's pay will come out of a pop-up toaster.

Businessmen Planning Christmas Decorations

South End To Get Huge Yule Tree

The Queen City will put on its Yuletide season "makeup" this weekend when the Mercantile Bureau of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce and the South Cumberland Businessmen's Association dress up the city for Santa's annual visit.

Area Man, 73, Attacked Last Week, Succumbs

Death Of S. J. Beal Is Termed Natural

A 73-year-old man who police said was attacked by an unknown assailant a week ago, died yesterday in Sacred Heart Hospital, but his death was attributed to natural causes.

Simon J. Beal of Oldtown Road, a retired coal miner, died at 4:50 p. m. yesterday. He had been admitted to the hospital on Sunday.

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, said death was caused by peritonitis due to a perforated intestine. He also said there was no reason to believe that Beal's death was anything other than natural.

When Beal went to the hospital Sunday to undergo a hernia operation at the advice of his physician, he had a black eye. He reportedly told hospital attaches that someone had mistaken his identity and had struck him.

Attacked In Mt. Savage

Trooper First Class William F. Baker, State Police criminal investigator, said later investigation showed that Beal had been injured in a scuffle which took place a week ago yesterday in Mt. Savage.

Dr. Deming said there was no reason to believe that Beal had been fatally injured in the fight. Deming said results of an autopsy last night showed no indication that Beal had been struck a blow in the abdomen.

Baker said Beal had been visiting his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Foy of Mt. Savage, last Monday. Beal and Foy reportedly went out together for the evening, returning home at about 11:30 p. m. Baker said Beal went back out and came home an hour later with a black eye and a cut over one eye.

No Serious Injury Found

Beal told the Foy's he had been attacked by a tall, broad-shouldered man wearing a grey coat, who apparently had mistaken him for someone else.

A Mt. Savage physician who treated Beal on Tuesday morning said he found no indication of any internal injury. On Saturday night, the physician said, the elderly man fell while opening a garage door at the Foy home.

When he was brought to the doctor's office early Sunday morning, Beal complained of severe pains in his abdomen. The physician said he had advised Beal to go immediately to Sacred Heart Hospital for an operation.

The elderly man underwent surgery on Sunday, but died a little more than 24 hours later.

Had Ten Children

Beal, a native of Meyersdale, Pa., was born February 12, 1879, a son of the late S. J. Beal and Lavina Hutzell Beal. He was twice married. His first wife, Mrs. Amelia Kreitzberger Beal, is deceased.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Eliza Koonz Beal of Trenton, N. J.; seven daughters, Mrs. Grace Gearhart, Meyersdale, Pa.; Margaret Christ, Mifflinburg, Pa.; Fannie Bingham, Buffalo Mills, Pa.; Mrs. Martha Ohler and Mrs. Clara Little, both of Rockwood, Pa.; Mrs. Edna Ohler, Meyersdale, Pa.; and Mrs. Gertrude Foy of Mt. Savage; three sons, Walter Beal, Dayton, Ohio, and Arthur Beal, and Robert Beal of Trenton; two brothers, Benjamin Beal, Fostoria, Ohio, and Perry Beal, Meyersdale, and three sisters, Mrs. Emma Ackerman and Mrs. Julia Hand, both of Meyersdale, and a third in Jerome, Pa.

The body is at Zeigler Funeral Home in Hyndman, Pa., where a service will be conducted at 2 p. m. Thursday by Rev. Charles Raley, pastor of the Evangelical United Brethren Church, Ellerslie. Burial will be in Madley Cemetery.

Dentists To Ask Fluoridation Plan

The Allegany-Garrett Dental Society will present a resolution calling for the fluoridation of city water to the Board of Health today.

The meeting will be held at 9 a. m. in City Hall. The resolution will ask the board to request the Mayor and Council to pass an ordinance on the plan to cut tooth decay.

Car Brakes Ignite

East Side firemen were called to the top of Long Hill on U. S. Route 40 shortly after 2:30 p. m. yesterday when an automobile's emergency brake caught fire.

Firemen said the 1947 sedan, owned and operated by Joseph H. Davis, Flintstone, was not seriously damaged. They said Davis had been driving with the brake set, and did not realize the brake was on until the brake bands started to burn.

Cumberland's "new face" will include large center stars with peppermint sticks, varied colored cylinders and shepherd scenes amid strands of balsam pine on Baltimore Street.

The Baltimore Street phase of Cumberland's Christmas outfit will be handled by the Mercantile Bureau and will be similar to the popular decorations of last year which the Chamber noted were among the best the city has had.

Ideal Weather Brings Out Early Yule Shoppers

A record shopping crowd invaded the business section last night indicating that coupled with the current ideal weather, many local shoppers are doing their Christmas buying early.

Already local stores have stocked their counters with Christmas merchandise, and decorated their show windows in traditional Yuletide manner.

Last night's early crowd of Yule buyers indicates a prosperous season for Cumberland businessmen, and similar crowds are expected throughout the season.

At the same time this weekend, the South Cumberland Businessmen's Association will decorate streets in that section of the city. The businessmen are also planning to use similar ornaments as last year with a few extra features now in the planning stage.

One additional feature, according to association officials will be a huge Christmas tree which will be placed in a lot next to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad YMCA. The tree and labor will be donated by the railroad while trimmings and lights will be furnished by the businessmen's group.

Then, on Thanksgiving night, November 27, Christmas lights will be turned on to add color to the laurel, holly and trimmings, and officially open the Christmas shopping season.

Not long after the lighting event, other lights will appear in the city's business sections—those of local stores. Robert Little Ebert, chairman of the Mercantile Bureau, said beginning Saturday, December 13, stores will be open until 9 p. m. This will give the Queen City nine night openings before Christmas. Stores will close at 6 p. m. on Christmas Eve.

Contest Slated

Meanwhile stores are stocking their counters with Yuletide toys, gifts and other items, and additional clerks are being employed for the shopping season. Already many show windows are decorated in the traditional green and red colors of the years last and favorite holiday.

This year, the Junior Association of Commerce will again conduct its home lighting contest with prizes for best lighted and decorated homes during the Yuletide season.

Plans for this year's contest will be discussed at the Jaycees directors meeting tomorrow night at WDWK.

The committee in charge of the event includes Oscar J. Lashley, Jr., chairman; Perry Shaffer, Roy F. Whiteman, Howard Buchanan and Richard Growden, Jr.

Liquor License Appeal Docketed

Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris is scheduled to hear an appeal at 1:30 p. m. today in Allegany County Circuit Court from a decision of the Allegany County Board of License Commissioners. The appeal was filed last Friday for Romeo Basilio, operator of Patsy's Place, 19 Front Street, by Attorney John M. Robb. Basilio contends he was "aggrieved" by his failure to receive one of the county's liquor licenses awarded last Thursday.

On that day the Board of License Commissioners awarded the last two remaining licenses in the county. They were assigned to Kenneth P. Hager and Malo M. Green, operators of Excelo Fruit Market, 814 North Mechanic Street, and Melvin Barber, Legislative Road, Barton.

Barber obtained his Class B restaurant-type beer, wine and liquor license immediately and surrendered his beer and wine permit. Hager and Green have not yet received the package goods license which has been assigned to them.

Attorney Robb argues that the board's action last Thursday was arbitrary. He contends that Basilio was the first applicant for one of the liquor licenses and has held a beer and wine license since 1935. He also cites that there is no Class B beer, wine and liquor license in the area of Cumberland east of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks and north of Baltimore Avenue. Basilio was one of 14 unsuccessful applicants at last Thursday's meeting. There are 58 liquor licenses in the county besides the 60 club-type permits.

GET 50-YEAR PINS—Two 50-year members of Altamont Lodge 448, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, were honored at a banquet and dance last night at the home of Lodge 271, Loyal Order of Moose. Receiving 50-year membership buttons were James A. Stuck, retired B&O engineer of Silver Spring, formerly of here, and Charles E. Burke, retired Western Maryland Railway engineer, this city. Shown left to right are H. H. Curtis, Clarksburg, general chairman; Stuck, Burke and Clark Catlett, this city, oldest member of the lodge with 55 years membership.

Safety Director To Speak At Ali Ghan Dinner Tonight

A dinner meeting at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club today at 6:30 p. m. will be one of the features of Allegany County Safety Week being sponsored by the Western Maryland Safety Council.

J. Henry Holzshu, chairman of the dinner committee, announced Inspector Richard Mansfield of the Washington Star will present his safety circus as a part of the program.

Mansfield, a retired Washington police inspector, has been called "the cop who saves kids' lives." A national magazine in a recent article said Mansfield as school safety director for the Washington Star is responsible for a 75 per cent reduction in accidents involving school age children in the District of Columbia during the past ten years.

Mansfield covers two states, Maryland and Virginia, in personal appearances in schools to teach safety to children.

He uses cartoons to illustrate his talks and enlists children in his band of "Careful-ers" dedicated to preventing accidents and saving lives. He has been active in this phase of safety for 26 years.

One of the old timers of vaudeville, he has worked with such stars as Eddie Cantor and the late Al Jolson. He appeared years ago at the Maryland Theatre when it was on a vaudeville circuit.

Mansfield is accompanied by Paul E. Burke, executive director of the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission.

During Mansfield's two-day stay in Cumberland, he is visiting a number of schools in the vicinity, giving his safety program. His schedule was arranged by John J. Long, city police and fire commissioner, and Arthur G. Ramey, supervisor of transportation for the Allegany County Board of Education. The appearances are being sponsored by the Cumberland Police Department.

Proposed Wage Boost

Long said that to show his real interest in the men as individuals, one of his first acts when made a member of the council in 1950 was to request "an across the board raise."

"No grievance committee, no pressure group—no one can take credit for that. Likewise, no group ever said 'thanks'—but I guess that's human nature."

Long cited other advancements which, he said, were made with "you, the man on the beat in mind." These he listed as pay in, instead of time off for overtime; the best equipment with which to do the job; new cruisers; new radar equipment; white raincoats, hats and belts; as well as the opportunity for educational advancement and in some cases expert training.

"In addition," Long continued, "when one of you has been attacked publicly in council meeting or another public place, I have supported you and defended you."

"I have never interfered with you or disregarded an officer's (Continued on Page 5, Col. 3)

Mayor Asks Long For Accounting Of Department

Harmony Is Sought In City Government

Mayor Roy W. Eves yesterday asked Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long to give an accounting of the administration of his department.

The prepared statement by the mayor was read in yesterday's council meeting after Long read his reply to Thomas N. Berry, attorney for the Police and Firemen's Association, who last week charged that Police Department morale was low.

Long also had read a letter which he has sent to each officer in the department explaining his side of the controversy.

Long's reply to Berry appeared in the Sunday Times and Cumberland News, and this also drew a blast from Eves.

The text of Eves' statement follows:

Humiliated By Action
"Through the Industrial Exposition, the businessmen of this city recently completed a marvelous job of public relations, erasing the common belief from the minds of many that Cumberland is not a good community in which to live."

"One-sixth of a million dollars has been raised to provide an industrial sales manager to lead a selling campaign that will bring industry to Cumberland and employment to those who are anxiously awaiting the call to work and wages. Therefore, I do not intend to let Cumberland in for another round of unfavorable publicity by permitting a continuation of futile newspaper debate concerning a condition which should be settled around the conference table, if all of the key men would come to it with the welfare of Cumberland in their minds and the understanding of man in their hearts."

"Mr. Berry is a member of the bar of Allegany County, a man of integrity. His service with the Federal Bureau of Investigation is evidence that he has an unblemished background and also explains his sympathetic interest in the welfare of the Police Department personnel which, no doubt, has lead him to serve them for an insignificant remuneration."

"Notwithstanding this, it is humiliating to me as chief executive of this city that any city employee should feel constrained to employ him to present their grievances."

"Cumberland has, in the making, and underway, many projects of major importance that should command the interests of the Mayor and City Council such as the new highway in South End, Frederick Street extension and sewerage, fluoridation of water, flood control which now involves rebuilding of four bridges, relief of the traffic problem at Franklin Street, extending George Street to Bedford Street, completion of doubling the capacity of our filter plant, sewage disposal, completion of the Thomas (Continued on Page 5, Col. 4)

Sanitary Group Asks Delegates For Act Changes

Mt. Savage's Need Receives Attention

Several changes in the 1949 act under which the Metropolitan Sanitary Commission for Allegany County was set were recommended last night by the commission as ways of insuring that Mt. Savage might have a public water supply system.

The commission's recommendations were made at a meeting in the Court House with State Senator Robert B. Kimble and the six members of the County Delegation in the House of Delegates.

Limitation Cited

Special emphasis was given by Dr. William E. Moseley of Mt. Savage, commission chairman, to the fact that the act limits the amount of bonds that can be issued to finance construction of water and sewerage to 10 per cent of the assessed valuation.

In Mt. Savage's case, the limit would be $80,000, or 10 per cent of the $800,000 assessed valuation. Gorman E. Getty, who serves as attorney for the commission, noted that preliminary plans on the Mt. Savage proposed water system call for a cost of about $145,000.

Dr. George L. Hall, chief engineer of the State Department of Health, who sat in on the meeting last night, suggested that it might be wise to raise the limit to 14 or 15 per cent.

Getty, cautioning that such a limit still would prevent Mt. Savage from building a public water supply system, suggested that it be wise for the County Delegation and Senator Kimble to get the limitation deleted completely. If the people are opposed to the water system they will express themselves in a referendum before the bonds are floated.

Herbert C. Heineman, Cresap Park, secretary of the commission, informed the County Delegation that another shortcoming of the 1949 act was an absence of any provision as to how the commission members are to be paid. He explained that the commission has obtained a loan of $5,000 from the Allegany County Board of Commissioners which is to be repaid when the first bonds are sold.

Opposes Plan

Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., said that he opposed any plan whereby the entire county would pay for something that would benefit only Mt. Savage, the only community which has set up a sanitary district.

Finally, the commission members agreed that if they obtained about $1,500 a year plus $3,228 to repay the commissioners for county money already spent, their financial problems will be settled.

Charles M. See, chairman of the County Delegation, summed up the meeting by urging Dr. Moseley to write up his suggestions and submit them to Senator Kimble and himself before the 1953 session of the General Assembly convenes in January.

Senator Kimble expressed a suggestion that the sanitary group might first confer with the county commissioners before submitting recommendations to the delegation. Dr. Moseley promised that this action would be taken immediately.

Others attending last night's session were Aden Miller of Lonaconing, third member of the commission; Delegates Noel Speir Cook, Fred B. Driscoll, Lester B. Reed and Estel C. Kelley, and W. M. Bingley, an assistant to Dr. Hall.

Green Paroled From House Of Correction

A number of paroles announced yesterday at Annapolis included Lee Green, city, who was sentenced April 22 of this year in Allegany County Circuit Court to serve one year in the House of Correction.

Green, who was sentenced for maintaining a gambling table and slot machine, had his sentence commuted to meet a federal detainee.

Luke Paper Machines Start Rolling Today

Full Production Is Possible This Week

Although faced with many technical and mechanical problems in reactivating a mill that has been strike-bound for more than 12 weeks, officials of the Luke plant of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company expressed the hope last night that four of the mill's seven paper machines would be back in production this morning.

A. M. Kaiser, manager of the Luke plant, said a crew of some 350 electricians, mechanics and maintenance and construction employees who reported for work yesterday morning, along with employees of the bleach and chalk departments, had made excellent progress in preparing the mill for reopening.

Will Roll Today

Present schedules call for No. 1, 2, 3 and 6 paper machines to begin rolling before noon today and No. 4 to start up by tomorrow night. No. 5 machine will be brought in later in the week, possibly late Wednesday or Thursday.

Several days will be required before anything like full production can be attained, particularly on No. 6 machine, which has been extensively rebuilt and modernized recently and had been running only two and a half days when the shutdown occurred. This machine, one of the mill's largest, will have to be further shaken down before it can be operated near capacity.

The other big producer of the mill, No. 7 machine, which was reconditioned at heavy cost in the summer, will not be started up for about a week, since crews now are installing a new dryer hood which will further increase the efficiency of the unit.

To Report At 8 A. M.

In addition to the machine rooms, the work crews had to accomplish considerable work in the pulp mill, the bleach and chalk plants, the refiner rooms and the finishing department before production could be started.

The mill's power plant was ready for immediate service following the reopening, since it had been maintained in operating condition throughout the strike.

The woodyard has plenty of pulpwood on hand to begin operations and is preparing to receive truck deliveries of pulpwood from producers in the area beginning Thursday.

Shift workers needed to operate the equipment scheduled to start up will report for the first shift at 8 a. m. today. The mill's regular around-the-clock, seven-day-a-week schedule then will be followed, with the second shift reporting at 4 p. m. and the third shift at midnight. Workers scheduled to report have been notified by their immediate foreman or through posted bulletins.

By the end of the week it is hoped that nearly all of the 1,600 hourly employees who have been idle for more than three months will be back on the job.

Project To Resume

Plant officials also said that outside construction workers engaged in rebuilding the pulp mill, a major improvement project which was interrupted by the strike, will resume work in force before the end of the week.

A skeleton crew of these workmen reported for duty when the mill was reopened yesterday morning. This project, originally scheduled for completion this spring, probably will not be finished now until late in the year.

The first payday following the reopening will fall on Wednesday, November 26, and checks will include the additional four cents per hour raise granted under the new contract ratified by members of the local union at a meeting Saturday. This increase does not require approval by the Wage Stabilization Board.

Seek WSB Approval

Two other money items in the new agreement—the two additional paid holidays and the increase in shift differentials—do require WSB approval, plant officials pointed out. Petitions are now being filed with WSB in an effort to obtain early sanction of these benefits.

In the meantime, employees who work on Thanksgiving Day, one of the new holidays granted, will receive regular premium pay of time and one-half, as under the old contract. As soon as WSB approval is forthcoming the company will pay all employees for eight hours at straight time, as holiday pay for Thanksgiving. The other new holiday granted under the contract is New Year's Day.

The shift differential pay also will be retroactive to November 17 when WSB approval is granted. This clause in the new agreement provides a shift differential of three cents per hour for second shift workmen and six cents per hour for the third shift. Under the old contract the differentials were two and four cents.

Covington Mill Opens

The Covington plant resumed operations yesterday as its 2,000 workers returned to their jobs.

Operations were resumed at 7 a. m., but company officials said it would be several days before full production is resumed.

2 Hurt As Car Hits School Bus

A Baltimore man and his wife were hospitalized yesterday after their car rammed into a school bus on U. S. Route 40 a few miles east of the city.

The couple, Charles Belt, 42, and his wife, Mrs. Ann Belt, both of 8 Preston Street, Baltimore, were admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital here at about 5:30 p. m.

Hospital attaches said Belt complained of pains in his back and was in "fair" condition last night. Both Belt and his wife, who was reported "resting comfortably," are scheduled for X-ray examination today.

The Belts reportedly were traveling west toward Cumberland when their car hit the side of the eastbound school bus, which was making a left turn across the highway when the crash occurred.

One child on the bus was slightly injured but did not require medical attention.

Will Resume Duties

Wallace G. Ulery, city clerk, who underwent an operation on September 30, will return to his duties at City Hall today.

FAMILY NIGHT—The first Church Family Night dinner ever held in the new Christian Educational Building of First Presbyterian Church attracted a record crowd last night. The dinner, at which Rev. Dr. Raymond L. Lindquist, minister of First Church, Orange,
